

Originally from Dallas, TX, Cammie has consistently created pathways towards social justice and civic engagement in the worlds of higher education for over 16 years. She is a first-generation college student and holds a B.S. in Kinesiology from the University of Texas at Austin and a M.A. in Higher Education Administration from Louisiana State University A&M.

Cammie Jones is the CEO and Founder of J. Jones Consulting, LLC where she works alongside non profits and higher ed institutions on civic engagement initiatives. She also serves as the Bard Center for Civic Engagement and Open Society University Network (OSUN) Senior Fellow. Cammie served as an Assistant and Associate Dean of Experiential Learning and Civic Engagement during her tenure at Bard where she oversaw experiential learning and campus/community partnerships as well as and assisted on the Carnegie Classification team which received classification in 2020. Furthermore she has served in high level executive roles at Dutchess Community College, Marist College and Barnard College.

She is currently an adjunct professor teaching courses in the human rights division for Bard and OSUN. Courses have included Women and Leadership, Women and COVID 19: Activism, Leadership, and Global Engagement, and most recently Women and the Pandemic, to help amplify the voices of the next generation of leaders. She has also organized a number of international and domestic conferences on civic engagement, young leadership development, and the future of women's rights.

Cammie's areas of expertise include experiential learning, community-campus partnerships, curricular engagement, co-curricular engagement, faculty/staff engagement, institutional culture, community engagement initiatives, pathways for student development and learning through community engagement and community engagement and other institutional initiatives.

Cammie has dedicated her life to service and leadership, sitting on several boards and committees for local nonprofits and receiving numerous accolades for her contributions to higher education and community engagement. Cammie recently received the 2021 ATHENA Award from the Chamber Foundation Inc., as well as the 2012 Forty Under 40 Class from the Dutchess County Regional Chamber of Commerce, the N4A 2014 Professional Promise Award for Region 1, the AWCC 2017 Forty Under 40 Class, and the 2017 Arc of Dutchess Peggy Martinko Community Trailblazer Award from the Arc of Dutchess.